David joined the private client department of Horwath Clark Whitehill in November 1997 having qualified as a chartered tax adviser in 1994. He became a partner in April 2007 and advises high net worth individuals including those in the sports, media and entertainment sectors. Many of his clients run their own businesses so he has become skilled in providing tax advice and compliance services to businesses.

David also advises on Limited Liability Partnership tax structures and is experienced in advising both UK and non-UK domiciled individuals on income tax, capital gains tax and inheritance tax planning issues. He works very closely with the firm's financial advisers in providing clients with tax efficient investment products.
